Jericho's Stitching For Care Club Makes Donation To Homeless Shelter

The 38 members of Jericho High School's Stitching For Care club have been busy preparing for the holiday season of giving.

Members of the club knit 24 wool hats and 17 wool scarves as presents for homeless children living at the Urban Family Center – Henry Street Settlement in New York City.

“Each year, the members choose one or two charities to support,” said club advisor Lillian Armstrong. Knitting for the homeless children was based on a suggestion from Armstrong's son. He was student teaching in New York City and taught art one night a week at the Urban Family Center.

Other Jericho teachers and students also volunteered to help give even more holiday presents to the children.
